About OlviPet

Years ago, research and development began on an elixir based on arguably the world's best olives from Crete - hand-refined to retain all their precious ingredients. The positive characteristics of olives with regard to the heart, blood circulation and digestion are scientifically proven. Enrichment with seeds and herbs paved the way for a unique composition to suit animals. The creation of the exceptional OlviPet Collection came about when a group of people with capabilities in the areas of research, medicine and food technology got together and found themselves united in their love for dogs - a man's best friend. A team of nutrition and marketing specialists from the pet sector gave this special collection an identity which differentiates it from everything that has been available in the market until now. A lovingly developed corporate identity, packaging that radiates closeness to nature as well as POS-optimized sales promotion materials complete the picture. www.olvipet.com
